

Call for Applications

The American Association of Philosophy Teachers (AAPT) Facilitator Training Seminar

Location: Virtual (Zoom)
Date: June 28 – July 1, 2021
Seminar Facilitators: David W. Concepción (Ball State University, Muncie, IN)
Stephen Bloch-Schulman (Elon University, Elon, NC)
Application Deadline: Monday, May 17, 2021

Description

Participants will review best practices in teaching and learning, practice workshop facilitation techniques, peer review workshop designs, and examine the fundamentals of workshop administration, specifically focused on the administration of one-day regional workshops in teaching and learning run by the AAPT.

This seminar assumes participants are experienced, scholarly teachers with some history of service in teaching and learning activities.

Attendance

Participants are required to attend all sessions, which will be held June 28 – July 1, 2021. To accommodate the most participants, we anticipate that the seminar will begin in the early afternoon in the Eastern time zone and the late morning in the Pacific. Exact time will be confirmed once participants have been identified.

Work outside of meeting times is expected throughout the seminar. Please plan to have approximately two hours available for seminar work in addition to the three hours of meetings.

Fee

Only AAPT members may participate, and the seminar is free to all AAPT members. To join the AAPT go to: https://www.pdcnet.org/aapt/American-Association-of-Philosophy-Teachers-\(AAPT\))
